CENTRELINK DEBT FIASCO

What you can do if you've been contacted

It's been widely reported that Centrelink is using a computer algorithm to identify overpayments, or 'debt' in an effort to reclaim monies paid to welfare recipients. It's done by matching fortnightly Centrelink reporting periods to annual income from the Australian Taxation Office and looking for discrepancies. The aim is to recoup $4 billion over the next four years.

It seems that the automated system is creating false debts by finding discrepancies when people have only worked part of the year, or part-time, with claims that the system is treating current and past Centrelink recipients like second-class citizens. Now, the Australian Council of Social Service (ACOSS) is calling on the Australian Government to immediately suspend the automated debt recovery program. ACOSS also calls for the program to be independently reviewed.

Acting ACOSS CEO Peter Davidson said: "Centrelink has demonstrably failed in its duty of care to ensure accurate information is provided to recipients of income support and this failure is causing undue stress, anxiety and harm to some of our most vulnerable people.

One poster at notmydebt.com.au, said she was heavily pregnant, working full time and had just moved house when she was contacted about $1600 on her Newstart allowance.

"I received a debt covering the 2013-2015 period [when] I was working casual contracts (that's all I could get at the time!) and I was unemployed in between. Centrelink averaged these payments over the entire financial year to make it look like I was claiming Newstart while earning money," she posted.

She's currently processing an appeal against the debt.

"In December, we wrote to the Minister calling for the immediate suspension of the debt recovery program because of the systemic problems with the data-matching system," Peter Davidson said.

"ACOSS does not oppose debt recovery action where overpayments have occurred. However, Centrelink must properly investigate overpayments rather than shift the onus of proof onto Centrelink recipients. This would not be accepted from a private creditor and it should not be accepted from a government agency assisting financially vulnerable people."

"To reach an arbitrary target of $4 billion in savings, the government has opted for an error-prone system. For every million dollars raised, it's likely that hundreds of people are told to repay debts they don't have and hundreds more are needlessly subjected to stress and anxiety."

"The government has a duty of care towards people who call on it for support, especially those on low incomes. It has breached that duty of care with this debt recovery program, which is why the program must cease in its current form to prevent further harm."

"We are hugely concerned that people are paying back debts that they do not owe because it is too hard to prove that they do not owe it. Where people have issues with the online portal, many cannot get through to Centrelink on the phone and are not receiving the help they need at Centrelink offices."

Similarly, the National Welfare Rights Networks said the online compliance system is fundamentally flawed and must be abandoned. In a statement they said that The National Social Security Rights Network has been working since last year to help people respond to debts raised by Centrelink's new online compliance intervention system. "Although we welcome the changes recently announced by the Minister for Human Services it has become clear that the new system is fundamentally flawed. The NSSRN calls for the system to be abandoned," it read.

"To add insult to injury, a 10% recovery fee appears to be systematically applied to debts when it should only apply where people knowingly or recklessly give false information to Centrelink," Peter Davidson said.

"Automated debt recovery action must be suspended, including against people who have already received letters. ACOSS repeats its call to Minister for Human Services Alan Tudge to meet with organisations representing and assisting Centrelink clients in the near future to redesign the program so that it is accurate, fair and humane."

If you are worried about a letter from Centrelink, don't know how to respond, or believe a debt has been wrongly raised, there are number of things you can do.

- National Welfare Rights Network – <http://www.welfarerights.org.au/organisations> A network of community legal centres throughout Australia which specialise in social security law. This service is free.
- Legal Aid Commissions – <http://www.nationallegalaid.org/> Your local legal aid commission can give you information and advice.
- Your local community legal centre – http://www.fclc.org.au/find_a_clc.php Provides legal information and advice. Most services are free.
- Commonwealth Ombudsman – www.ombudsman.gov.au/ Assists the public by investigating and resolving complaints about Government departments and agencies (and has launched an investigation into the automated debt recovery system).
- ACOSS also suggests that you contact your Local Member of Federal Parliament to let them know how this has affected you – http://www.aph.gov.au/About_Parlia.../House_of_Representatives
- Lifeline 13 11 14 – a national charity providing all Australians experiencing a personal crisis with access to 24 hour crisis support and suicide prevention services.

You can share your experiences with the new system on Facebook Twitter and Instagram using the hashtag #notmydebt. You can also post your stories on the Not My Debt site: <http://www.notmydebt.com.au/>

JAMIE'S MINISTRY OF FOOD

The Mobile Kitchen has arrived locally for the next leg of its ongoing Queensland tour.

Jamie's Ministry of Food Australia is delivered by The Good Foundation and supported by Stockland while in Newport. Queensland Health provides funding to The Good Foundation to support the delivery of the program throughout Queensland.

Participants of the program will learn to cook via a hands-on-experience led by Jamie's Ministry of Food – Food Trainers assisted by local volunteers.

Jamie's Ministry of Food Mobile Kitchen, the first of its kind, opened in Queensland in January 2012 and since then has been teaching Queenslanders how to cook from scratch using fresh food.

Results from a comprehensive evaluation of the program conducted by Deakin University and University of Melbourne showed participants who complete the course increased their vegetable consumption, were more confident in cooking meals from scratch and spent less money on take away foods.

Classes cost $20 per session; $15 for student card holders and $10 for concession. Bookings are open now and can be booked through www.jamiesministryoffood.com

Jamie's Ministry of Food is based on Jamie Oliver's belief that knowing how to cook healthy food from scratch is one of the best things you can do for your health, happiness and finances.

The Good Foundation is a not-for-profit organisation which has partnered with Jamie Oliver and principal partner, Woolworths to deliver Jamie's Ministry of Food throughout Australia. Queensland Health has committed funding to The Good Foundation to support the delivery of the program in Queensland. The Good Guys, founding partner of Jamie's Ministry of Food Australia, is proud to support the program which is helping to build healthier and happier communities.

The kitchen is located at Stockland Newport, corner of Griffith Road and Boardman Road. Classes began on Monday 16th January 2017 and run for 10 weeks.

HADRON COLLIDER

STEP INSIDE THE WORLD'S GREATEST EXPERIMENT

Back in December Queensland Museum opened a new exhibition that gives visitors a tremendous opportunity to experience the power of science.

Hadron Collider: Step inside the world's greatest experiment, unveils the inner workings of the world's largest and most powerful particle accelerator.

Hadron Collider: Step inside the world's greatest experiment (9 December – 25 April) provides a behind-the-scenes look into the particle physics lab at the European Organisation for Nuclear Research (CERN) in Switzerland.

CERN's Large Hadron Collider is the world's largest and most powerful particle accelerator. It consists of a 27 kilometre ring of superconducting magnets that was built by more than 10,000 physicists and engineers from 100 countries, and is known globally for proving the existence of the Higgs boson.

Queensland Museum CEO Professor Suzanne Miller, recently additionally appointed to the role of Chief Scientist for Queensland in 2017, said Hadron Collider: Step inside the world's greatest experiment honoured the work of thousands of scientists in helping to understand the building blocks of life.

"This amazing immersive exhibition, developed by the Science Museum in London, uses tangible elements to help explain particle physics and quantum mechanics – the science of the truly tiny," Ms Miller said.

"Visitors can talk to virtual scientists, walk the tunnels of CERN, explore the control room and stand in the heart of a particle collision to relive an historical moment of scientific discovery.

"Science is exciting. It is a way of discovering what's in the universe, how it worked in the past, today, and how it will likely work in the future."

"The Large Hadron Collider has captured people's imaginations like few other experiments, and we are delighted to offer our visitors the chance to see the project through the eyes of the scientists behind its design and operation."

Hadron Collider: Step inside the world's greatest experiment is on at Queensland Museum until 25 April 2017. Level 3, Queensland Museum, Cnr Melbourne & Grey Streets, South Bank, Brisbane.

Tickets are on sale now through QTIX or by calling 13 62 46. Tickets cost: Adults $15, Children $12, Concession $13.50, Family (2 adults and up to 4 children) $45.

COUNCIL NEWS WITH JULIE GREER

Representing North Lakes, Mango Hill, Griffin and parts of Kallangur and Deception Bay

Find me on

Happy New Year to everyone,

Welcome to 2017. I hope everyone had a wonderful festive season. 2016 was a big year for Division 4 with the opening of the Moreton Bay Rail Link and IKEA (just to name a couple) and I am sure 2017 will bring more exciting projects. I am looking forward to continuing working with the local Division 4 community to ensure it remains a safe and happy environment for everyone.

2017 Library Visits

My first visit to the North Lakes Library will be on Wednesday 1 March from 10am – 11am. There will be no visit in February. Come along if you would like to meet me or have any Council issues you would like to discuss with me.

New Mango Hill Boulevard Bridge Open

The new Mango Hill train station and surrounding neighbourhoods is now far easier for residents to access, with the kilometre-long Mango Hill Boulevard Bridge opened to traffic on Monday 23 January just in time for the start of the school year.

The Mango Hill Boulevard Bridge is one of 22 bridge and road structures delivered through funding provided by Council as a partner in the Redcliffe Peninsula Line. The new bridge provides an important link from the eastern side of the new rail line to the west.

This will not only cut travel time for people who live in the local area, but will also help to reduce traffic on Anzac Avenue.

Brumby Parade Park North Lakes

Council will be carrying out works in coming weeks at Brumby Parade Park to install a shade structure over the existing BBQ. Works are scheduled to commence mid February 2017 and are expected to be complete within 2 weeks, weather permitting. I am pleased this project is about to commence as it is a direct request from local residents and will provide much needed shelter for residents and visitors while enjoying the parks facilities.

Mosquito Update

Council is continuing its aerial treatment program for mosquitoes as ideal conditions trigger saltmarsh mosquito larvae to hatch. Council's aerial treatment program targeted more than 2500 hectares of saltmarsh areas across the region (including Deception Bay, Griffin and Mango Hill) on January 14 and 15, treating saltmarsh mosquito larvae before they pupate.

The treatments coincide with ongoing on-ground treatments across council's parks, recreations and reserves and earlier aerial programs which occurred throughout December and on January 3 and 5.

Most mosquitoes however breed in backyards and residents are encouraged to help combat mosquitoes in and around the home by taking five minutes to empty any containers that may carry stagnant water, make sure their pool remains chlorinated and regularly apply mosquito repellent. Residents can also opt for outdoor barrier treatments available at hardware stores to treat for adult mosquitoes.

Community Grants Program

If you're a sporting or community group or an individual making a difference, then you may be eligible for a Moreton Bay Regional Council community grant. The next round of grant applications opens on 1 February 2016 and submissions must be lodged by 31 March 2016. Application and guidelines are available at www.moretonbay.qld.gov.au.

Come along to one of the information workshops on Wednesday 8 February 2017, 10am - 12 noon at the North Lakes Community Centre, 10 The Corso, North Lakes to find out how you or your organisation can benefit.

ABOUT LEONIE

Leonie Scilling is a qualified counsellor, Trainer and Assessor, published Author, Columnist, Radio Commentator and Justice of the Peace. Established in 2007, North Lakes Counselling Services has a long history of helping couples and individuals manage their relationships and attain their personal goals.

SHE ALWAYS FINDS A WAY TO CREATE DRAMA

Hi Leonie,

I have been listening to your radio spot lately and reading the Messenger for years and girl I love your work. I feel that I can ask you about my issue with a friend and hope it gets published in the Messenger Mag.

I have a very dear friend who I first met in Melbourne at our private school. We were both newbie's and clung together like sisters. We are both in our thirties now and whilst I am happily married to my first and only boyfriend and have two children, she has been bouncing between long and short term relationships since high school.

I would like to say that all these guys she has been with were losers but it's not the truth. Most were just wonderful but she always found fault with them and went out of her way to create drama.

My friend is a lovely person with so many good qualities but every time she breaks up with someone she is a whinging misery guts and won't talk about anything else. I am exhausted with her, my husband is exhausted with her and things between my husband and her are very tense and close to complete fallout. Her family are all still in Melbourne and I am really all she has.

My husband says he only married me and didn't sign up for this constant carry on from her. He has called her on her crap and now I find that instead for coming around she is constantly on the phone rehashing the same old stuff over and over. She doesn't listen to any feedback and just keeps talking.

I just don't feel I can do it anymore. I have a husband, a job and two children to care for. She often rings at dinner or during prep time for dinner and at all hours in the evening like when we sit down to watch telly. I don't want to lose my friend but this just can't go on as it's wrecking my marriage.

We never fight much but lately she is the hot topic of all our fights because we have no "us" time in the evenings. How can I get her to change and get on with her life?

Meg/Murrumba Downs

Hi Meg,

Please hear me when I say that you can't get her or anyone else to change. She has to work on her own issues and no amount of you working on her behalf is going to facilitate change. What you are doing is giving her an audience to project her thoughts, feelings, anger and injustice upon. What you can do is change your behaviours regarding your friends use of your time together and draw some fair but strict boundaries around you, your home and your family commitments.

I would advise that you have an open and transparent conversation with your friend and let her know that her constant complaining about her love life is: 1: not helping her and may actually be delaying her recovery and 2: damaging your friendship to the point that you are going to have to make some hard decisions if things don't change. Tell her that you have a family, work and child care commitments and can't be available 24/7 as her therapist.

Let her know that you love her and value the friendship and this is why you are talking to her straight rather than just screening her calls or being unavailable. Perhaps suggest that you see a pattern of behaviour that has gone on for years and that she may benefit from getting professional input to help her identify why she is caught in these negative relationship loops.

You might also try to involve her in mutually rewarding activities like going to the gym and practice distracting her when she keeps steering the conversation back to her ex by introducing a new topic.

Be empathetic to her situation and her loneliness and remember that not everyone is lucky enough to fall and stay in love with their high school sweetheart.

Til next week, Leonie

AUSTRALIAN ORGAN DONORS SAVING MORE LIVES

WRITES DR ANITA GREEN, BRISBANE NORTH PHN

A record number of Australian lives were saved last year thanks to a 16 per cent surge in deceased organ donations, with more than 500 donors giving the gift of life.

The Federal Government announced earlier this month that 1448 Australians received a transplant from a deceased donor in 2016, reflecting a 17 per cent increase in the number of lives saved.

Assistant Health Minister Ken Wyatt said last year also saw the second highest number of living donors since 2010.

"In 2016, 267 people received a living donation compared with 245 in 2015, an increase of nine per cent," Mr Wyatt said.

"This includes the 44 transplants under the Australian Paired Kidney Exchange Program," he said.

A living donor is someone who donates a kidney or partial liver to another person. Usually this is to a relative or close friend who has end stage kidney disease or liver failure.

Organ and tissue donations can save and significantly improve the lives of people who are sick or dying and for many, organ transplantation is their only hope for a healthy life.

One organ or tissue donor can transform the lives of 10 or more people, but around 1600 people are on the transplant list at any one time.

According to Transplant Australia, the majority of Australians (76 per cent) are willing to become organ and tissue donors.

But for organ donation to be possible the donor must die in hospital under specific circumstances and currently only one per cent of deceased persons meet this criteria.

Note that medical staff will do everything possible to save lives. Their first duty is to their patient and saving their life.

Organ and tissue donation will only be considered after all efforts fail and the patient has been legally declared dead.

It is also important to remember that the family of every potential donor will be asked to confirm the donation decision of their loved one before organ and tissue donation for transplantation can proceed.

"The decision to donate is one of the most selfless acts not only for the person receiving a lifesaving transplant but their families, friends and the communities they live in," Mr Wyatt said.

"By registering on the Australian Donor Register you are letting your family know your intentions at an incredibly difficult time.

"That's why it's crucial that we talk together and raise awareness and acceptance of organ and tissue donation and continue to increase national consent rate in 2017 and beyond," he said.

Almost everyone can help others through organ and tissue donation and, while age and medical history will be a consideration, no one should just assume they are too young, old or not healthy enough to become a donor.

Transplant Australia debunks many of myths on its website that tend to discourage organ donation, including the fiction that the family of the deceased won't be able to view the body or have an open casket at the funeral.

In reality, the removal of organs and tissues does not alter the physical appearance of the body. The process is no different from any other surgical operation and is performed by highly skilled professionals who treat the body with dignity and respect.

For more information on organ donation or to become a donor, visit www.donatelife.gov.au.

INFORMATION ABOUT OUR 2020 VISION

www.mueller.qld.edu.au/2020vision

AVERAGE QUEENSLAND ADULT HAS 15KG TO LOSE IN 2017

The Chief Health Officer's latest report revealed the average Queensland adult gained one kilo every three to four years over the past decade – one in four gained weight in the previous year alone.

Cancer Council Queensland spokesperson Katie Clift said the new year was a great opportunity for Queenslanders to think differently about health and weight loss.

"Queenslanders don't need a revolutionary New Year's Resolution or dramatic change to their diet or exercise habits to get healthy," Ms Clift said.

"Avoiding weight gain is a challenge for many Queenslanders – Cancer Council works hard to make the healthy choice the easy choice, to help people achieve sustainable lifestyles.

"Encouragingly, the data shows two-thirds of Queensland adults have taken action to either lose weight or to prevent weight gain in the past 12 months.

"About 45 per cent of Queenslanders work to lose weight by reducing portion sizes, and 40 per cent increase physical activity.

"Small bursts of incidental activity can make a big difference to overall health – gardening, walking to work and playing outdoors with the kids, for example.

"There are great gains to be made with small increases in activity and slight adjustments to the daily diet."

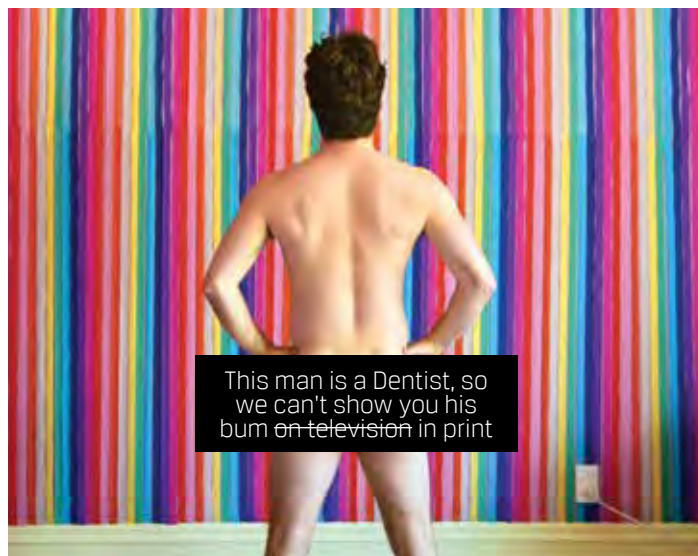

The research also found attitude played a strong role in getting healthy – adults who believed in a benefit from weight loss were more likely to actively manage their weight.

"We're working hard to help Queenslanders change their attitude to weight loss and wellbeing," Ms Clift said.

"The benefits to losing weight are an increased sense of wellbeing, greater health and reduced risk of a range of chronic diseases, including some cancers.

"Make a commitment to small changes for your health in 2017 – helping you to lose weight, and keep it off in the long term."

YOUR STARS

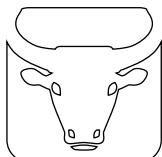

Aquarius Jan 21-Feb 19: New life will be brought to a dwindling prospect. Yes, it's still a long shot, but at least there is still something to shoot for.

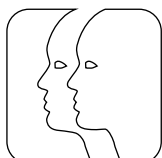

Pisces Feb 20-March 20: How is it that every disaster thrown your way only seems to improve your standing? Clearly you're more resilient than you give yourself credit for.

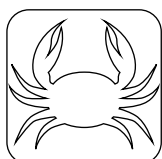

Aries March 21-April 20: Careful with how you word things today because something that's important in your message could get lost in translation.

Taurus April 21-May 21: Don't assume you're on the same page. You may be papering over the cracks of a united front that isn't so united.

Gemini May 22-June 21: Thankfully someone puts the right spin on what you say. Be generous in your thanks and praise because it could have gone south very quickly.

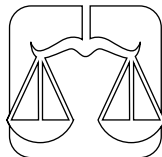

Cancer June 22-July 23: People try to act like what went down isn't a big deal, but everyone knows it is. You need to explain the situation so it never happens again.

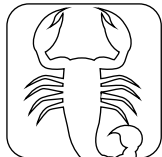

Leo July 24-Aug 23: Review the sums and you'll see you've incurred an extra charge incorrectly. Bring this up politely and it will be taken care of discretely.

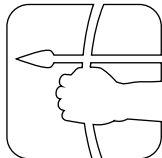

Virgo Aug 24-Sept 23: You receive a reimbursement but you're not sure what it's for. Deposit the check first then ask questions later.

Libra Sept 24-Oct 23: You hate to play dumb, but certain people need the ego strokes. Let them think they're coming up with all the bright ideas.

Scorpio Oct 24-Nov 22: It's true that progress is glacial, but even slow boats eventually get to their destination.

Sagittarius Nov 23-Dec 21: You're ready for better things. Weather it's a change of address or whatever it may be, you're definitely moving up in the world.

Capricorn Dec 22-Jan 20: you're stressed when you're under worked and you're stressed when you're over burdened. You need to decide which it's going to be because you can't have it both ways.

They shall not go unnoticed

No roll of drums, no big parades, no fame or fortune, accolades,
No Icons, Legends, what comes next? They're seldom twittered, seldom text.
They run our shops, The Op and Tuck, if they're your kin, well half your luck,
Run Soup Kitchens, and Service Clubs, they'll fight in fires, but rarely pubs,
They're S.E.S, they're Ambos, Police, They're ADF, they keep the peace,
They may be paid or volunteers, I'll pull up there, could go for years,
What Life throws up, they sit the test, they try to be their very best,
With helping hand, and loving touch, make time to care, it don't take much,
The point my friends, I'm trying to make, as people go, these take the cake,
They could be old they maybe young, salt of the earth, Heroes Unsung.

Paying it Forward

I just wanted to publicly thank the wonderful gentleman who came to my rescue at 6am this morning.

It's not really an exciting story.... I ran out of petrol (and money) at 2am driving my distraught daughter home from her sleepover because she wasn't feeling well and wanted her mum..... luckily we were a 10 minute walk from home so we walked home.

I tried to get help to get my car off the road at least but at that time of night everyone I know was asleep. Anyway later this morning the Traffic police called me to say they could get me a tow to safety so I made my way back to the car and while I was waiting for the truck a lovely guy in his work clothes either on his way home from or to work pulled over in his red ute and offered to help... I said thanks but not to worry as I've got a tow coming so off he went. 20 minutes later he came back with a can of petrol for me!! I was so grateful for his kindness and was almost in tears... gave him a big hug and off he went! I don't even know your name but I'm hoping you read this so that you know how thankful I am and that I will definitely pay it forward whenever I see someone in need. I'm a single mum living here with no family so support is pretty sparse. I do have a handful of close friends who I'm sure would have been there for me but when a complete stranger offers help it really restores one's faith in humanity.

Thank you for taking time out from your own day to simply do a good deed. I will remember this forever xxxx

Eternally Grateful, Mango Hill.

Vet experience

On 30/12/16, my beloved black cat, Pippin, was hit by a car on Nicklaus Parade. Some lovely person rang to advise me & I raced over to pick him up & take him straight to the 24 hour vet in North Lakes. I was very distraught & confused. As I entered the vet's waiting room, a lady who was there with 2 small dogs immediately rang the bell to alert the staff. She was wonderful.

I never got to thank her for her compassion & kindness. When they took my cat away she gave me a hug & rubbed my back. I appreciated this so much. I'm hoping this lady will read this & know how she made me feel comforted in a horrible situation. A gentleman who was on the phone when I entered also brought me my phone that I left on the bench when I went to a cubicle. Thank-you to both these thoughtful & wonderful people. My little man crossed the rainbow bridge that night & I know he's in a better place!

DETOX AFTER XMAS!

By Debb Webber, Zen-Chi Natural Therapies

The Detox Foot Spa is a gentle non-invasive therapy, which re-energises the body and helps support the body to detoxify naturally, helping restore your natural equilibrium and well being.

During a foot spa treatment, the Ion Cleanse unit delivers a small amount of low level, electrical current into the array (electrode), which results in a reaction between the array, the water and the Himalayan salt (added to help conductivity and increase the ionisation effect), to generate positively and negatively charged ions.

When the feet are placed in the water the interaction of the positive and negative ions re-energises, revitalises and supports the body's innate ability to rebalance and achieve a higher state of wellbeing.

In a healthy person, your body should have 80% negative electricity (negative ions) and 20% positive electricity (positive ions). But the human body is like a giant magnet that attracts and holds onto toxins. Heavy metals, partially oxidized fats, dissimilated proteins, cholesterol deposits, uric acid, plague, lactic acid and the vast array of chemicals that pervade our water, air and food attach themselves in ionized form to joints, organs, arteries, nerves and tissues. These toxins disrupt normal body functions creating an environment for disease, allergies, and immune system problems.

Some of the healing benefits assist with wrinkles, acne & other skin problems, weight control (improved metabolism), improve memory & sleep, significant pain relief, asthma, increases energy & reduces stress, arthritis aches & rheumatoid, liver detoxification and purging of heavy metals to name a few.

BUSINESS CASE FOR NEW HIGH SCHOOL BEING EXAMINED

Does North Lakes/Mango Hill need a new school?

The case for a new local high school, or campus, in the North Lakes/Mango Hill area has been boosted by news that Building Queensland is examining a proposal for extra high school capacity north of Brisbane, Chris Whiting MP said.

The December 2016 'Infrastructure Pipeline Report' confirmed that Building Queensland is helping build a preliminary case for extra secondary schooling capacity in the region.

"Just as we are getting ready for school in 2017, it is very exciting to learn that a new local high school, or high school campus may be entering the infrastructure pipeline," Mr Whiting said.

"It is encouraging news for all the families who know that we live in one of the fastest growing areas of Australia, and we have a lot of pressure on our very popular schools,"

"It is early days yet, but I will continue to lobby Education Minister, Kate Jones, for an additional high school in Mango Hill, North Lakes or Griffin," Chris Whiting said.

The Palaszczuk Government has invested $32 million in education infrastructure in Murrumba, including a $15 million multi-storey classroom block to start construction soon at North Lakes State College, and new classrooms at Mango Hill and Bounty Boulevard State Schools.

The Infrastructure Pipeline Report stated on Page 8 that the 'Additional Secondary Schooling Capacity North of Brisbane' proposal was one of just two new projects that have 'entered the pipeline'.

The proposal is at the Strategic Business Case Stage, which is the earliest stage of development.

Building Queensland is an independent body that sets out the state's infrastructure priorities.

HAVE YOUR SAY ON NEW STATE BUILDING PLAN

Queenslanders will have the opportunity to run their rulers over the state's building and construction industry with the release of a discussion paper for a new Queensland Building Plan.

Minister for Housing and Public Works Mick de Brenni said that the Queensland Building Plan consultation was an opportunity for industry and consumers to help shape the course of the state's $44 billion building industry.

"We have a strong, modern and vibrant building industry and this government is committed to making sure the sector continues to grow and develop.

"The Queensland Building Plan looks at a number of reforms designed to bring increased confidence to the sector, including our government's historic reforms on security of payment for subcontractors."

Mr de Brenni said that the discussion paper covers a range of areas including a review of licencing and plumbing and drainage laws, the potential for a single state housing code and the sustainability of buildings.

"Industry has been keen on a single housing or development code for a long time and it's time to have an open and public discussion about the merits of such a code," Mr de Brenni said.

"Many home owners across the state have expressed concerns about the operation of the QBCC Home Warranty Scheme and we want to hear from as many Queenslanders as possible to make sure that it is in line with community expectations.

"The Queensland Building Plan discussion paper brings all of these areas of reform together so that people can have their say."

Mr de Brenni said that the discussion paper was the result of extensive consultation with industry and that the government would be rolling out a comprehensive consultation program through early 2017.

"I want to hear from home owners, from builders, from subcontractors, licensees, industry groups and local governments about each of these proposals.

"My department will be running public consultation sessions right across the state, and I encourage everyone to get along and have their say.

"Ultimately the Queensland Building Plan is about create the right settings to make sure we all reap the benefits of a strong and prosperous building and construction sector."

The Queensland Building Plan discussion paper and information about the consultation can be found at www.hpw.qld.gov.au.

"Team Wilkie, how amazing are you guys! Very professional in the way you go about your business! No meeting was ever an issue no matter how late, you both always had a smile on your face and always had new ideas and strategies through every step of our campaign! We got the figure we wanted for our property and we couldn't be happier! We would recommend you guys in a heartbeat!! Thank you both again for making this process so easy for us!"

NEW HOME SALES BOUNCE BACK IN NOVEMBER

The HIA New Homes Sales Report – a survey of Australia's largest home builders – shows a strong bounce in November 2016, said the Housing Industry Association, the voice of Australia's residential building industry.

"Following a dip to a two year low last October, the November bounce in new home sales is a reminder that the national new home construction sector remains in strong shape," said HIA Chief Economist, Dr Harley Dale.

"The sector may have just passed its peak, but the short term outlook is a healthy one, a conclusion supported by other leading indicators such as the ABS measures of Building Approvals and Housing Finance."

The November update for the HIA's monthly New Home Sales survey shows a 6.1 per cent bounce in seasonally-adjusted new home sales. Over the three months to November 2016 the total number of new home sales fell by 0.7 per cent to be down by only 0.2 per cent when compared to the same three month period in 2015.

"At this stage of the new home building cycle that's a very impressive result – this is already the largest and longest national new home construction cycle in history."

"A healthy outlook for new home construction in the first half of 2017 is good news for the Australian economy, because of the huge impact that new home construction has on broader economic activity. Without the boost from housing over the last five years the domestic economy would have at some point slipped into recession."

"You wouldn't want to be seeing signals of an imminent and sharp slowdown in national new home building activity, and we're not. Looking further out, the declines in construction activity will inevitably become chunkier," concluded Harley Dale.

in november 2016 new detached house sales increased by 5.2 per cent, while sales of multi-units were up by 9.3 per cent.

Seasonally-adjusted new detached house sales increased in four out of five mainland states in November 2016. New South Wales was the exception with a decline of 5.9 per cent. In November last year detached house sales increased by 17.9 per cent in Queensland, 4.7 per cent in Victoria, 4.2 per cent in Western Australia, and 4.0 per cent in South Australia.
